Go to Bowling Green.

Miss Dorothy Gregory, of Brandenburg, left Sunday afternoon after a visit to her grandmother, Mrs. Lucy Gregory. Miss Dorothy and her mother, Mrs. Ella D. Gregory, leave this week for Bowling Green to attend the State Fair for three months.

News To Those

Who Want Rates To City

Cloverport to Louisville and return, April 28, 29 and 30, return limit, May 2, $2.98. On account of Kentucky Educational annual meeting.

Mother's Day At

Hardinsburg Sunday

At the brick church at Hardinsburg Sunday, Mother's Day will be observed. All mothers are requested to attend. Flowers will be had in their honor.

Lick Run Bridge.

The road from Stephensport to Cheahault has been impassable for over three months. Lick Run bridge on this road is in such a condition that no one can pass over it. The attention of the Road Supervisor is called to it.

Big Crowd at Brandenburg.

Vic Robertson, Thos. Withers, Hardinsburg; and Ernest Henderson, Irvington, were in Brandenburg Monday afternoon for the first day of circuit court. They report a good crowd and much interest in the candidates.

Having Good Luck.

Breckenridge News has just received a letter from Mr. and Mrs. J. D. of Madisonville. They write of good luck this spring. They have radishes and mustard from their garden. They have peas large enough to eat, 500 cabbage heads large as a tomato, tomato plants one foot high and kinds of fruit in good shape.

Protect the Young Birds.

The vine on the porch, the trees in the garden, the grass in the meadow, all are soon to be bird nurseries. Allow nothing to disturb the happy nests of those whose mission is to make the world brighter and better.—Dumb Animals.

Mr. Spradlin Dead.

D. T. Spradlin died Sunday afternoon of uraemic poison. He leaves a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Charley Chapin, to mourn his loss. We extend our sympathy to the family. The interment took place Monday in Cedar Hill cemetery.—Irvington Correspondent.

Remember the "Old School House Hill" with a cash donation for the Concrete Walk.

Dirtiest Town On The Ohio, Cloverport Or Cannelton?

While in The Breckenridge News office Saturday, Mr. Henry Tate said that some man had said in a speech here that "Cloverport was the dirtiest town on the Ohio." In reply to this Mr. Tate said, "Do you read Mr. Early's paper? Cloverport is not the dirtiest town." He complimented the Telephone editor and said that Mr. Early was doing a great work for his town.

Mr. and Mrs. Tate are expecting their daughter, Mrs. Proctor Henwood, of Grandfork, N. D., next month. It is so cold where she lives that Mr. Henwood pays $10 per ton a month for coal to heat their flat. "We don't know how well off we are in Cloverport, paying just $3 a ton for coal."

Advertising in News Pays.

The Irvington Hardware and Implement Co., Irvington, say they are well pleased with the results of their advertising in The Breckenridge News. Last week they sold ten buggies, one phaeton, several farm implements, one Owensboro wagon and over a thousand rods of fence wire, besides many other items of hardware, lumber, etc. Their sales are running far ahead of last year and they give their advertising in the News credit for it.

CLUB FEDERATED

At Irvington--Campaign on For Sanitary Grocery Stores--Housekeepers League Thriving and Gaining Membership.

Irvington, April 28.—(Special.)—The Housekeepers' League at this place, though yet in its infancy, is doing a fine work under the auspices of Mrs. C. L. Chamberlain. Only last month we joined the Federation of Women's Clubs whose annual meeting will be held at Middlesboro, Ky., in June, to which we expect to send a delegate.

Quite an interesting meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Chamberlain on last Thursday. Mrs. Waggoner made a timely talk on "Flies." The literary and musical program was a pleasing feature of the meeting. The dainties served by Mesdames G. L. Brady and J. T. Mattingly were enjoyed by all.

The object of these meetings is to discuss the principles of cookery, after which food dietetics and sanitation will be taken up. We expect to request the grocers of our town to protect all green groceries, food-stuffs and butter, especially, from dust and flies, by screening or covering with mosquito net.

Our number has grown until now we have a very interesting bevy of women who expect to accomplish a great deal of good in this line of work, and hope to increase in membership, as we feel this will not only be beneficial but a pleasure to all. This club meets the last Thursday in each month and a cordial invitation is hereby given to all interested in this work.

Notice.

All persons knowing themselves indebted to me for city and school taxes for the year 1912, will please call and settle by the 15th of May, 1913, and after that date I will advertise and collect by law. Please settle and save cost.

L. V. CHAPIN,
City and School Tax Collector.

Visits of the Stork.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brickey April 15, and left twin babies, a boy and a girl. They have been given the name of David Earl and Annie Muriel.

News has been received here from Evansville of the arrival of a fine son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brickey. Mr. Brickey is the son of Mr. Tom Brickey, our popular mail carrier.

Undergoes Operation.

Mrs. D. H. Severs underwent an operation at Dr. Simons' office Thursday morning. Dr. Simons was assisted by Dr. McDonald, a surgical nurse from Louisville and Mrs. Embry. Mrs. Severs stood the operation beautifully and has returned to her home. Her friends were surprised to hear of the operation and were mighty glad she got through so well.

Calumet Baking Powder Canvass In Cloverport

Mrs. Stanley, accompanied by ten young women, made a canvass of Cloverport Friday and introduced the Calumet baking powder which will soon be advertised in the Breckenridge News.

Jim Spider Webb.

Little Marion Clay Roff was stolen away from the Cloverport Hotel Friday and taken over to Mr. J. B. Randall's for dinner. When he came home he told the folks what he had to eat and that the colored man waited on the table. He could not think exactly what Jim's name was, but he knew it was something close to Webb and called him "Jim Spider."

Lightfoot's Appointment.

Washington, April 24.—Charles E. Lightfoot has been appointed postmaster at Cloverport. The nomination was sent in and confirmed by the Senate.

Aeroplanes For Fair.

The Breckenridge County Fair will be held August 19, 20 and 21. There will be an aeroplane for three days, two flights for each day.

New Parsonage.

J. L. Pool, contractor, has just finished the Presbyterian parsonage at Garfield. It is a four-room bungalow and a pretty little building.

New Way.

A colored woman went to the pastor of her church the other day to complain of the conduct of her husband, who, she said, was a low down, worthless, trifling fellow. After listening to a long recital of the delinquencies of her neglectful spouse and her efforts to correct them, the minister said: "Have you ever tried heaping coals of fire upon his head?"

"No," was the reply, "but I done tried hot water."—Metropolitan Magazine.

Save The Middle-Aged!

"Save the babies!" was the cry of the last decade. "Save the middle aged!" will be the cry of this. The real race suicide is not in the insufficiency of births, but in the inadequate knowledge of the diseases of maturity and in the inadequate care and prevention of these diseases.—Century Magazine

Junior Division Meets.

The Junior Division, of the Woman's Missionary Society, will hold a devotional service Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist church. Miss Beulah Pate will be the leader with all the members taking part.

Remembers The Old School.

Breckenridge News, Cloverport, Ky. Gentlemen:—I enclose herewith my check for $1.00 as a contribution to the Cloverport High School concrete walk fund. Sincerely,

Jno. D. Babbage,
April 24, 1913. Atlanta, Ga.

Baseball Season Opens In Louisville

(By the Associated Press.)

Louisville, Ky., April 24.—The American association season opened here today between Louisville and Kansas City. Balmey spring weather prevailed, and thousands attended the game.

Mrs. Deane's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Sallie M. Deane, who died Sunday evening, will be conducted at the residence of her son, J. Allan Deane, on the Main street road, west of Owensboro, at 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. E. E. Bomar, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Owensboro, will conduct the services. The interment will follow in Elmwood cemetery. The following will act as pallbearers: Hon. W. T. Ellis, W. N. Bumpus, Ben T. Fied, Dr. W. F. Stirman, Henry G. Overstreet and George W. S. Parrish.—Wednesday's Owensboro Messenger.

C. H. S. Teachers.

The Cloverport High School Board has elected teachers for 1913 and 1914 as follows: Prof. Culton, Messrs Rufus McCoy and Roscoe Laslie, Misses Margaret and Julia Wroe. A teacher for the third and fourth grades will be elected later.

Church To Be Dedicated.

The Methodist church at Central City will be dedicated Sunday, May 4, by the Rev. Mr. Frank Thomas. Rev. Mr. B. M. Currie has been pastor of the church during its erection.

Will The County Employ An Agricultural Expert?

Irvington, April 28. (Special.)—The salary of Agricultural experts range from $1,400 to $1,800 per year. The salary office expense and traveling over the county amount to $2,700, the total expense per year. If the county will raise $1,000 another $1,000 can be secured from the Crop Improvement Committee, of Chicago, and the rest of the amount needed, from the Department of Agriculture. Many counties are raising more than this amount and are employing an expert independent of any outside help. With the help available, Breckenridge county ought to be able to employ an Agricultural expert.

A Fudge Party.

A most enjoyable evening was spent Saturday at the home of Mrs. W. G. Payne, where she and her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Knott, gave a bountiful fudge party. At 3 o'clock the guests were invited to eat fudge, pickles, popcorn and other good things. Those present were: Misses Lelan Butler, Ruth Snyder, May Pile, Nannie Beauchamp; Mrs. Albert Tucker, Mrs. W. S. Payne, Mrs. Florence Pile, Mrs. P. R. Payne and children; H. W. and Robt. Moorman. All left thanking Mrs. Knott for such a pleasant evening.—Harned correspondent.

ROBBED CARS.

Two Men Trapped by New United States Law For Stealing Merchandise From Freight Cars.

Evansville, April 25.—Frank Desch, 30 years old, 715 Upper Fifth street, and Ben Utley, 26 years old, of 1004 Sycamore street, who were arrested Wednesday night at their homes by Detectives Heeger and Niemeyer on a charge of stealing merchandise in interstate transit, preferred by William O. McIntosh, of Louisville, special agent for the Southern railroad, were brought before U. S. Commissioner Judge Wartmann yesterday afternoon in custody of U. S. Deputy Marshal George Felthaus.

Both of the men had been in the employ of the Southern railroad as truckers at the freight house. It is charged that they broke into boxes of merchandise, hiding articles under the platform until an opportune time to get them. Work of this sort has been going on continually, say local representatives of railroad companies.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. The result was lasting."—Hon. John R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala.—Adv.

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Nervousness Caused by Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

"Doctor's Daughter Took It." St. Cloud, Minn.—"I was so run down by overwork and worry that I could not stand it to have my children talk aloud or walk heavy on the floor. One of my friends said, 'Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I know a doctor's daughter here in town who takes it and she would not take it if it were not good.'"

"I sent for the Compound at once and kept on taking it until I was all right."—Mrs. BERTHA M. QUICKSTADT, 727 5th Avenue, S., St. Cloud, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon as the most efficient remedy for female ills. Why don't you try it?

HOW TO SUCCEED

During the last few years, conditions in all lines of business, even professional life, have changed so completely that every man is waking up to the fact that in order to win success he must specialize and learn to do some one thing and do it well.

So it is with any article that is sold to the people. It must have genuine merit or no amount of advertising will maintain the demand for the article.

For many years we have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. From the very beginning the proprietors had so much confidence in it that they invited every one to test it, free of cost, before purchasing.

It is a physician's prescription. They have on file thousands of letters received from former sufferers who are now enjoying good health as a result of its use.

However, if you wish first to try a sample bottle, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will gladly forward you a sample bottle by mail, absolutely free.

Regular sizes for sale at all drug-gists—fifty-cents and one-dollar.

Drs. Meador and Hall amputated James Blissitt's leg last Friday. He had tuberculosis of the knee.

Several Masons here attended the funeral of Mr. Spradlin at Irvington Monday.

Straight at It.

There is no use of our "beating around the bush." We might as well out with it first as last. We want you to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the next time you have a cough or cold. There is no reason so far as we can see why you should not do so. This preparation by its remarkable cures has gained a world wide reputation, and people everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. It is for sale by all dealers.—Adv.

HARNED.

Miss Alma Pile and Miss Jennie Kincheloe, of Hardinsburg, were the pleasant visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Payne, of Germantown, last week. Jim Harper and wife were in Hardinsburg Saturday.

Mrs. Steve Davis is on the sick list. Bro. and Mrs. C. L. Brington and children, Evelyn and C. L., Jr., left Friday for Haynesville.

Bruce Moorman went to Hardinsburg Friday.

Dr. Earl Moorman, who has been in Dakota for the past six months, spent a few days with his mother, Mrs. Ethel Moorman. Dr. Moorman left Friday for Louisville where he will accept a position with Dr. Milton Board.

Miss Bessie B. Weatherford spent a few days of last week at Garfield with her grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Board.

The Ladies' Missionary Society met Thursday with Mrs. C. C. Carman. A good crowd was present and some interesting talks given.

Miss Mary Pile, Miss Bessie Weatherford, Wilbur Pile and Bruce Moorman were at Kingswood Saturday.

Miss Jessie Frank, who has been the charming guest of Miss Alta Webster, left for her home at Kirk Saturday.

Cold water, a little lard—less than with ordinary flour—and a hot stove is all you need to make the finest of bread out of Perfection Self Rising Flour. It will save you 20 per cent. on your bread bill. Try it.

Entertainment at Guston.

On Saturday night, May 3, at 8 o'clock, the Young People's Club of Guston will give an entertainment for the benefit of the State Sunday School work. The play, "Then and Now," represents "The Old Deestricht School" of forty years ago, and a modern college play. Admission 20 cents. Children over five years 10 cents.

To Cure a Cold in One Day

Take LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. It stops the Cough and Headache and works off the Cold. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. GROVE'S signature on each box. 25c.

Annual Dental Association.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky State Dental Association to be held in Lexington, May 26 to 28, promises to be of more than usual interest to the dentists of this and neighboring States. Numerous new methods and appliances will be exhibited, and the clinics are to be conducted on a very elaborate and unique plan. Many dentists from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Tennessee will be in attendance. The Lexington dentists promise many interesting social features and, in fact, the entire program will prove a rare treat to all in attendance.

Accidents will happen, but the best regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil for such emergencies. Two sizes 25 and 50c at all stores.—Adv.

Efficient Saleswoman.

Miss Flora Smith, of Brazil, Ind., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Isome. She is taking a little vacation from her work in Brazil where she is in the sales department of a grocery business. Miss Smith says that the company uses the Leer system and no books are kept. Every time a customer buys an article the amount of their whole account is given, as it is brought forward on each bill. For an explanation, if you had gotten $5 worth of groceries yesterday and did not pay cash, it is put on the bill with the goods you buy today. Miss Smith says the system is very satisfactory to the customers and saves the grocery man much work.

Hogs Bring Good Money.

Mrs. Henry Pate and grandson, Marion Clay Roff, shipped four hogs to Louisville last week that brought them $76.

"Clincher" Paint

We know a paint which holds to the wood like a driven nail. Seasoned lumber is porous. The pores are the empty sap-cells. White lead paint, which dries on the wood in the form of a solid, elastic film, fastens into these pores, and the whole coat of paint is actually riveted like armor-plate to the surface it decorates and protects.

PHOENIX WHITE LEAD

make the paint that spreads into a solid body. It becomes a part of the wood itself—an outer layer that preserves the life of the lumber.

We sell it as well as other painting requisites. Come in and have a talk with us about painting.

"Father, I'm Glad You Smoke Duke's Mixture"

Before we tell you about the boy and his air rifle, we want you to hear about Liggett & Myers Duke's Mixture—the tobacco that thousands of men find "just right" for a pipe—the tobacco that makes "rolling" popular.

Liggett & Myers
Duke's Mixture

This favorite tobacco is fine old Virginia and North Carolina bright leaf that has been thoroughly aged, stemmed—and then granulated. It has the true tobacco taste, for the very simple reason that it is pure tobacco.

Pay what you will—it is impossible to get a purer or more likeable smoke than Duke's Mixture. It is now a Liggett & Myers leader, and is unsurpassed in quality.

In every 5c sack there is one and a half ounces of splendid tobacco—and with each sack you get a book of cigarette papers FREE.

How the Boy Got His Air Rifle

In every sack of the Liggett & Myers Duke's Mixture we now pack a Free Present Coupon. These Coupons are good for all kinds of useful articles—something to please every member of the family. There are skates, sleds, balls and bats, cameras, umbrellas, watches, fountain pens, pipes, opera glasses, etc., etc.

As a special offer, during January and February only, we will send you our new illustrated catalogue of presents, FREE. Just send us your name and address on a postal.

GOOD RESULTS FROM WEBB LAW

Anti-Saloon League Members
of Kentucky to See That
It Is Enforced

DRY TERRITORY TO BE DRY

Efforts To Be Made To Have Enacted
In All States Laws Similar To the Kentucky Statute, Which Prohibits Express Companies From Carrying Liquor From Wet To Dry Territory.

Special.—The triumphant exultation
of the leaders of the Anti-Saloon league over the enactment of the Webb law is manifest in many directions.

An active worker and prominent Kentucky member of the league, when recently asked concerning the effect of the law, made the following statement:

"We hope for great and good results from the Webb law, and we intend to see that it is enforced.

"It is not so much the bootlegger and blind-tiger peddler that we were after when we asked congress to pass the Webb law. The local state authorities can always get after them, but what we want is some means of stopping shipments for personal use.

"What is the use of our going to the effort and expense of voting a county or a state dry if every man in such territory can order and get liquor shipped to him for his own use
and the use of his friends and family?
It is this practice which we intend to break up.

"Where a territory is voted dry, we intend that it shall be really dry.

"We demanded of congress and secured the passage of the Webb law
after years of effort, and we have no intention of letting a stream of whisky flow into dry territory protected by the excuse of a right to get the stuff
for personal use.

"It is this very personal use traffic
which we intend to stop.

"If the country is to be taught temperance by our efforts, this shipping of liquor to the homes must be stopped.
This is the logical attitude of the Anti-Saloon league.

"Having, as we claim, the right to secure the regulation of the people in their personal habits, so far as the use of liquor is concerned—not only in public, but in their homes—we will seek to use the strong arm of the law
in enforcing our plans.

"To this end efforts are being made
to have enacted in all the states laws
similar to the Kentucky statute which prohibits express and railroad companies from carrying liquor from a wet county to a 'dry' county for personal use.

"There will be real prohibition when
no man can not get a quart of liquor
shipped to him for his household use,
but it is surely coming, and the people
of Kentucky and the rest of the country may as well prepare to welcome
the day."

dist church received more than a score
of descriptions, but he considers the following the best of all: "The ideal woman for a wife should have these qualifications: The voice of Melba, the talent of Paderewski, the figure of Venus, the grace of a sylph, the vivac-ity of a coryphee, eyes like the soft glow of a moonlight eve, an alabaster-
like complexion, the virtues of a nun,
the charm of Cleopatra, the meekness
of Moses, the patience of Job, the fer-bearance of Lazarus, the zeal of a Trojan, the constancy of Caesar's wife, the capability of a charwoman, the purse of Hetty Green and heir of her own." Perhaps there is such a woman on Mars. We don't know however, because we don't know
much about Mars.—The Advance.

Political Gossip.

Say, boys, Deputy Dick Perkins tells
this on the Hon. Joe Mullen. Says the very moment he announced himself as a candidate for Judge he became dumb
and couldn't say a word. Didn't know if it was bashfulness or what. Any way
he has employed Dick to do his talking
while Uncle Joe does the running.

Uncle Joe, not Jones, pays the freight.
They tell it on Dick that when he gets
in a big way talking both jaws work
up and down, and can talk to two men
at once. So you see the Hon. Joe
made a valuable find when he captured Dick.

After making a canvass of the county
I find that every Democratic voter in Breckenridge county is a candidate, except three, and they are old bachelors
and are candidates for matrimony.
Their names are Allen Jennings, Frank Greenwood and Joe Mulhatton.

Now, boys, as we are all candidates,
let every fellow vote for himself, and
that will make it a tie all round, and then we can throw wet or dry for the nominations. Wouldn't that be a bright idea? Tee, hee!

When it comes to large campaign
promises the Hon. Joe Mullen has them all layed in the shade. He says if he is elected he will build a road from Steph-ensport to Cloverport if he has to build a suspension bridge between the two places. Uncle Joe, we are for you, by gum!

Origin of Playing Cards.

Although it is commonly reported that playing cards were invented in France in 1392 to divert Charles VI, D'Allemagne, a French writer on the subject, mentions them as being in use in Belgium in 1379, and probably something analogous to them—marked
disks or counters—have been employed in the east from remote antiquity. It is now usually thought that it was in Italy playing cards were first made, about 1370, and at Venice.
The attempt to connect their invention with astrology arises from the four suits, and 52 cards in all, being associated in ingenious minds with four seasons and the number of weeks in the year. It does not appear likely that there was anything more associated with the cards than amusement at the first, though gambling
was a vice with the Greeks and Romans long before the Christian era, and games for gain with some kinds of counters were doubtless found among them.

WOMEN, TOO, MAY VOTE IN SCHOOL ELECTION SATURDAY.

All women of legal age will get to vote for the school trustee Saturday from one o'clock to six o'clock p. m. If you get through washing dishes in time, think about the school and give it your interest. It will be a mental diversion for you and you will not only help the great cause of education, but you will get a fresh point of view, and that is far better than staying within your four walls and taking chances on becoming morbid. Mrs. Champ Clark says: "The average business man does not neglect his business because he casts a vote. No more will the average woman neglect either her home or her business when she is enfranchised. It will be in her hands the same weapon for good and power of righteousness that it is to the right kind of American man."

PRESIDENT WILSON'S POLICIES.

Mr. Wilson in declaring the policy of this Democratic administration said: "We purpose to prevent private monopoly by law." He sums up the attitude of the administration in this way:

"Our purpose is the restoration of freedom.

"We purpose to prevent private monopoly by law, to see to it that the methods by which monopolies have been built up are legally made impossible.

"We design that the limitations on present enterprises shall be removed so that the next generation of youngsters as they come along will not have to become proteges of benevolent trusts, but will be free to go about making their own lives what they will; so that we shall taste again the full cup, not of charity, but of liberty—the only wine that ever refreshed and renewed the spirit of a people."

There is no misunderstanding of these words. They are wise and conservative, and mean that this shall be a government of, by and for the people.

THIS LETTER IS APPRECIATED.

Lexington, Ky., April 21, 1913, Mr. John D. Babbage, Cloverport, Ky., Dear Mr. Babbage: Please accept my hearty thanks for your congratulatory letter of April 18th. The good wishes of my friends make the honor done me by the President much more gratifying. I remember with pleasure your effective and never-failing support of the President in the pre-convention campaign; and, along with a few other men in Kentucky, you stood loyal to him when the cause seemed unlikely to succeed. I shall always remember with pleasure my association with you in that campaign. With best wishes for your continued success, I am,

Cordially and sincerely yours,

Give your daughter an allowance—the one that stays home and washes the same old dishes three times a day. Give her a check every Monday if it is only a dollar. This will encourage her and she will learn the delight of stretching the dollar and the wisdom of meeting her own bills. A little money that she can call her own—made and deserved—will make any woman in the home happier and better contented with the place she fills.

Miss Eva Carrigan entertained the Young People's Christian Association Friday night. Delightful refreshments were served.

The circle No. 5 in the School League, with Mrs. Parks as chairman, gave the first of a series of entertainments last Thursday evening at the school building. The games and refreshments were much enjoyed, and the musical program arranged by Mrs. L. H. Jolly was excellent. The opening number by the Mandolin Club and the piano duet by Mrs. Jolly and Miss Julia Lyons were greatly applauded. A solo and chorus, "Maybe It's a Bear," by Master Geo. Piggott and Misses Helen Board, Susie Payne, Nellie Adkins and Elizabeth Hook was conceded to be the feature of the evening. Messrs. Robert Lyon, David Herndon and Ernest Reese gave with fine effect "The Rhine Raft Song." They graciously responded to an encore and recall. Jerry Gannane gave two amusing readings in his characteristic way. A nice profit was realized for the league equipment fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Word Graham are installed in their new home on Walnut street.

TREMENDOUS POWER OF SEA

Average Landsman Would Find It Hard Properly to Appreciate Its Full Force.

The average inland American who has never seen the ocean has no real idea of the force of its waves. He reads about the storm, of boats being carried away and bulwarks stove in. But he does not realize the steam hammer blows that may be struck by mere water.

A recent storm on the British coast received the official designation of a storm of "extreme force." A picture taken in Hastings harbor shows the concussion with which the waves struck the sea wall, sending the spray apparently higher than the buildings along the street. Blocks of concrete and iron railings were torn from the new parade extension at Caroline place and tossed back into the roadway as if they had been bits of plank. Timber work that had withstood the stress of years was torn apart and carried away. Basements were flooded along all the seaward face of the town.

Such a storm, when it sweeps over a ship, will sometimes carry away almost everything on deck. Deck houses are often smashed, and the lifeboats are often stove in and ruined.

Various attempts have been made to devise motors to develop power from the force of the waves. The amount of energy wasted through their lack of success is beyond estimate. If the power of the sea could be used it would drive the machinery of an unlimited number of plants.

Hosiery for everybody—great values. Nolte.

Mrs. Sarah Downs, Miss Maud Downs, Miss Bessie Rhea Downs, Mrs. Gardner Board and little son, James W., spent last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. James W. Miller at Kirk.

The funeral of Mrs. Tom Pleasant was held Monday afternoon. The services were conducted by Brother Walker. The mother leaves a husband and two children, one a week-old baby.

Mrs. Joe Fitch went to Louisville Saturday to attend the ninety-first anniversary of the birthday of Mr. Allen Robinson. He was born at the place he now lives, and has reared a family of seven children. They are: George, Sam, Joe, Abner and Thos. Robinson, Mrs. Letitia Bandy and Mrs. Sam Bassett.

Teachers Honored.

Irvington, April 28.—(Special.)—On last Wednesday afternoon Prof. and Mrs. C. A. Tanner were tendered a surprise donation party by the pupils of the eighth grade and their friends. Mrs. Tanner was amazed to see a small army entering her yard laden with packages of many shapes and sizes. This is good proof that Mrs. Tanner has won the Most Valuable Medallions.

Medallions of earlier date than 117 A. D. are extremely rare and consequently very valuable. A well-known example, of great beauty, is the gold medallion of Caesar Augustus. Of much earlier date, however, are the famous Syracusan medallions, so called, although they were used as coins. These medallions, which are generally admitted to be the finest and most perfectly executed that have ever been struck, belong to the best period of Greek art, 400-336 B. C. On their faces they bear an ideal head, magnificent in its swinging sculptural lines, and upon the reverse the representation of a victorious quadriga, portrayed with a vigor of action worthy of those old Greek masters.

were unable to join forces on any kind of a fusion position. Committees appointed to represent each party, after being in conference some time, finally reported that they were unable to agree on anything.

The bone of contention was the Log Cabin, the Republicans refusing to leave their emblem, and the Progressives declining to come to it.

The meeting adjourned with each faction declaring their intention to nominate a full party ticket.

CHAPTER VII.

BERKELEY FRESNO was devoting himself to Miss Blake.

"What do you think of
our decorations?" she inquired.

"They are more or less
athletic," he declared, "Was
it Mr. Speed's idea?"

"Yes. He wanted training quarters."

"It's a joke, isn't it?"

"I don't think so. Mr. Fresno, why do you dislike Mr. Speed?"

Fresno bent a warm glance upon the questioner. "Don't you know?"

Helen shook her head with bland innocence. "Then you do dislike him?"

"No, indeed! I like him—he makes me laugh." Helen bridled loyally.

"Did you see those medals he wore
yesterday?" the young man queried.

"Of course, and I thought them
beautiful."

"How were they inscribed? He wouldn't let me examine them."

"Naturally. If I had trophies like that I would guard them too."

Fresno nodded, musingly. "I gave mine away."

"Oh, are you an athlete?"

"No, but I timed a foot-race once.
They gave me a beautiful nearly-bronze emblem so that I could get in to the infield."

"And did you win?"

"No! no! I didn't run! Don't you understand? I was an official." Fresno was vexed at the girl's lack of perception. "I'm not an athlete, Miss Blake.
I'm just an ordinary sort of chap." He led her to a seat, while Jean enlisted
the aid of Larry Glass and completed
the finishing touches to the decorations.

"Athletics don't do a fellow any good after he leaves college. I'm going into business this fall. Have you ever been to California?" Miss Blake admitted that she had never been so far, and Fresno launched himself upon
a glowing description of his native
state; but before he could shape the conversation to a point where his hearer might perchance express a desire to see its wonders, still Bill Stover thrust his head cautiously through the door to the bunk-house, and allowed an admiring eye to rove over the transformation.

"Looks like a bazaar!" he exclaimed.

"Trainin' quarters," said Glass.

"Mr. Speed goin' to live here?" inquired the foreman, bringing the remainder of his lanky body into view.

"No, indeed," Jean corrected, "he will merely use this room to train in."

"How do you train in a room?"

Stover asked her.

"Why, you—just train, I suppose."

Miss Chapin turned to Glass. "How does a person train in a room?"

"Why, he—just trains, that's all. A guy can't train without trainin' quarters, can he?"

"We thought it would make a nice gymnasium," offered Miss Blake.

"Looks like business," Stover's admiration was keen. "I rode over to Gallagher's place last night and laid
our bets."

"How much have you wagered?"

asked Fresno.

"More'n we can afford to lose."

"But you aren't going to lose," Miss Blake said, enthusiastically.

"I got Gallagher to play some records for me."

"Silas on Fifth Avenue?"

"Sure! And 'The Holy City,' too!
Willie stayed out by the barbed-wire fence; he didn't dast to go in. When I came out I found him ready to cry.
That desperado has sure got the heart
of a woman. I reckon he'd commit murder for that phonograph—he's so full of sentiment."

Fresno spoke sympathetically.

"It's a fortunate thing for you fellows that Speed came when he did.
I'm anxious for him to beat this cook,
and I hate to see him so careless with his training."

"Careless!" cried Helen.

"What's he done?" inquired Stover.

"Nothing, so far. That's the trouble.
He's sure he can win, but—Fresno shook his head, doubtfully—"there's such a thing as overconfidence. No matter how good a man may be, he should take care of himself."

"What's wrong with his trainin'?"

demanded Glass.

"I think he ought to have more rest.
It's too noisy around the house; he can't get enough sleep."

"Nor anybody else," agreed Glass,
meaningly; "there's too much singin'."

"That's funny," said Stover. "Music
soothes me, no matter how bad it is.
Last night when we came back from the Centipede Mr. Fresno was singin'
'Dearie,' but I dozed right off in the middle of it. An' it's the same way with cattle. They like it. It's part of a man's duty when he's night-ridin'
a herd to pizen the atmosphere with melody."

"We can't afford to snail Speed's

chances," argued the young man.

"There is too much at stake. Am I right, Mr. Glass?"

Now, like most fat men, Lawrence
Glass was fond of his rest, and since his arrival at the Flying Heart his sleeping-hours had been shortened considerably, so for once he agreed with the Californian.

"No question about it," said he.

"What do you think?"

Stover mopped the sweat from his
brow.

"Can't we time him with an ordinary
watch?"

"Sure. We can take yours. It won't
be exact, but—"

"I ain't got no watch. I bet mine
last night at the Centipede. Willie's
got one, though."

"Mind you, he may be all right,"
Fresno repeated, reassuringly; then
hearing the object of their discussion
approaching with his trainer, the two
strolled out through the bunkroom,
Stover a prey to a new-born suspicion,
Fresno musing to himself that diplo-
macy was not a lost art.

"You're a fine friend, you are!"
Speed exploded, when he and Glass
were inside the gymnasium. "What
made you say 'yes'?"

"I had to."

"Rot, Larry! You played into Fresno's hands deliberately! Now I've
got to spend my evenings in bed while
he sits in the hammock and sings
'Dearie.' He shook his head gloomily.

"Who knows what may happen?"

"It will do you good to get some
sleep, Wally."

"But I don't want to sleep!" cried
the exasperated suitor. "I want to make love. Do you think I came all the way from New York to sleep? I can do that at Yale."

"Take it from me, Bo, you've got
plenty of time to win that dame. Eight
hours is a workin' day anywhere."

Glass chuckled. "The whole thing is
a hit. Look at this joint, for instance."

He took in their surroundings with a comprehensive gesture. "It looks about
as much like a gymnasium as I look
like a contortionist. Why don't you
get a Morris chair and a mandolin?"

"There are two reasons," said Speed,
facetiously. "First, it takes an athlete
to get out of a Morris chair; and, second, a mandolin has proved to be many a young man's ruin."

Glass examined the bow of ribbon
upon the lonesome piece of exercising apparatus.

"It looks like the trainin'-stable for the Colonial Dames. What a yelp this place would be to Covington or any other athlete."

"It is not an athletic gymnasium."

Speed smiled as he lighted a cigarette.

"It is a romantic gymnasium. At Socrates once observed—"

"Socrates! I'm hep to him," Glass
interrupted, quickly. "I trained a Greek professor once and got wised
up on all that stuff. Socrates was the
—the Hemlock Kid."

"Exactly! As Socrates, the Hemlock Kid, deftly put it, 'in hoc signature vintage.'"

"I don't get you."

"That is archaic Scandinavian, and,
translated, means, 'Love cannot thrive
without her bower.'"

"No answer to that telegram yet,
eh?"

"Hardly time."

"Better wire Covington again, hadn't
you? Maybe he didn't get it?"

"I promised Mrs. Keap that I would,
but—"

Speed lost himself abruptly
in speculation, for he did not know
exactly how to manage this unexpected
complication. Of one thing only was
he certain; it would require some
thought.

"Say, Wally, suppose Covington
don't come?"

"Then I shall sprain my ankle,"
said the other. "Hello! What in the world—"

Still Bill Stover and Willie came into
the room carrying an armful of lum-
ber. Behind them followed Carara
with a huge wooden tub, and Cloudy
rolling a kerosene barrel.

"Where do you want it, gents?"
inquired the foreman.

"Where do we want what?"

"The shower-bath."

"Shower— I didn't order a shower-
bath!"

"No; but we aim to make it as pleasant for you as we can."

"If there is anything I abhor, it's a
shower-bath!" exclaimed the athlete.

"You just got to have one. Mr.
Fresno said all this gymnasium lacked
was a shower-bath, a pair of scales,
and a bulletin board. He said you'd
sure need a bath after workin' that
chest-developer. We ain't got no
scales, nor no board, but we'll toggle
up some sort of a bath for you. The blacksmith's makin' a squitter to go
on the bar!"

"Very well, put it wherever you
wish. I sha'n't use it."

"I wouldn't overlook nothin', if I
was you," said Willie, in even milder
tones that Stover had used.

"You overwhelm me with these little attentions," retorted Mr. Speed.

"Where you goin' to run today?" inquired the first speaker.

"I don't know. Why?"

"He may be the best sprinter in the
country, mind you, but I'll lay a little
bet that he can't run a hundred yards
without sustenance."

"Without what?"

"Sustenance—something to eat."

"Well, we've got plenty for him to
eat," said the mystified foreman.

"You don't understand. However,
time will tell."

"But we ain't got no time. We've
made this race 'pay or play,' a week
from Saturday, and the bets are down.
We was afraid the Centipede would
weld when they seen who we had, so we framed it that way. What's to be done?"

Again Fresno displayed an artistic
restraint that was admirable. "It's
none of my business," said he, with a
careless shrug.

"I—I guess I'll tell Willie and the
boys," vouchsafed Bill apprehensively.

"No! no! Don't breathe a word
I've said to you. He may be a crack-
jack, and I wouldn't do him an injustice for the world. All the same, I
wish he hadn't broken my stop-watch."

"D'you think he broke it a purpose?"

"What do you think?"

Stover mopped the sweat from his
brow.

"Can't we time him with an ordinary
watch?"

"Sure. We can take yours. It won't
be exact, but—"

"I ain't got no watch. I bet mine

ture vintage.'"

"I don't get you."

"That is archaic Scandinavian, and,
translated, means, 'Love cannot thrive
without her bower.'"

"No answer to that telegram yet,
eh?"

"Hardly time."

"Better wire Covington again, hadn't
you? Maybe he didn't get it?"

"I promised Mrs. Keap that I would,
but—"

Speed lost himself abruptly
in speculation, for he did not know
exactly how to manage this unexpected
complication. Of one thing only was
he certain; it would require some
thought.

"Say, Wally, suppose Covington
don't come?"

"Then I shall sprain my ankle,"
said the other. "Hello! What in the world—"

Still Bill Stover and Willie came into
the room carrying an armful of lum-
ber. Behind them followed Carara
with a huge wooden tub, and Cloudy
rolling a kerosene barrel.

"Where do you want it, gents?"
inquired the foreman.

"Where do we want what?"

"The shower-bath."

"Shower— I didn't order a shower-
bath!"

"No; but we aim to make it as pleasant for you as we can."

"If there is anything I abhor, it's a
shower-bath!" exclaimed the athlete.

"You just got to have one. Mr.
Fresno said all this gymnasium lacked
was a shower-bath, a pair of scales,
and a bulletin board. He said you'd
sure need a bath after workin' that
chest-developer. We ain't got no
scales, nor no board, but we'll toggle
up some sort of a bath for you. The
blacksmith's makin' a squitter to go
on the bar!"

"Very well, put it wherever you
wish. I sha'n't use it."

"I wouldn't overlook nothin', if I
was you," said Willie, in even milder
tones that Stover had used.

"You overwhelm me with these little attentions," retorted Mr. Speed.

"Where you goin' to run today?" inquired the first speaker.

"I don't know. Why?"

"He may be the best sprinter in the
country, mind you, but I'll lay a little
bet that he can't run a hundred yards
without sustenance."

"Without what?"

"Sustenance—something to eat."

"Well, we've got plenty for him to
eat," said the mystified foreman.

"You don't understand. However,
time will tell."

"But we ain't got no time. We've
made this race 'pay or play,' a week
from Saturday, and the bets are down.
We was afraid the Centipede would
weld when they seen who we had, so
we framed it that way. What's to be
done?"

Again Fresno displayed an artistic
restraint that was admirable. "It's
none of my business," said he, with a
careless shrug.

"I—I guess I'll tell Willie and the
boys," vouchsafed Bill apprehensively.

"No! no! Don't breathe a word
I've said to you. He may be a crack-
jack, and I wouldn't do him an injustice for the world. All the same, I
wish he hadn't broken my stop-watch."

"D'you think he broke it a purpose?"

"What do you think?"

Stover mopped the sweat from his
brow.

"Can't we time him with an ordinary
watch?"

"Sure. We can take yours. It won't
be exact, but—"

"I ain't got no watch. I bet mine
last night at the Centipede. Willie's
got one, though."

"Mind you, he may be all right,"
Fresno repeated, reassuringly; then
hearing the object of their discussion
approaching with his trainer, the two
strolled out through the bunkroom,
Stover a prey to a new-born suspicion,
Fresno musing to himself that diplo-
macy was not a lost art.

"You're a fine friend, you are!"
Speed exploded, when he and Glass
were inside the gymnasium. "What
made you say 'yes'?"

"I had to."

"Rot, Larry! You played into Fresno's hands deliberately! Now I've
got to spend my evenings in bed while
he sits in the hammock and sings
'Dearie.' He shook his head gloomily.

"Who knows what may happen?"

"It will do you good to get some
sleep, Wally."

"But I don't want to sleep!" cried
the exasperated suitor. "I want to
make love. Do you think I came all
the way from New York to sleep? I
can do that at Yale."

"Take it from me, Bo, you've got
plenty of time to win that dame. Eight
hours is a workin' day anywhere."

Glass chuckled. "The whole thing is
a hit. Look at this joint, for instance."

He took in their surroundings with a
comprehensive gesture. "It looks about
as much like a gymnasium as I look
like a contortionist. Why don't you
get a Morris chair and a mandolin?"

"There are two reasons," said Speed,
facetiously. "First, it takes an athlete
to get out of a Morris

"We thought you might do a hundred yards again time."

"Nix!" interposed Glass, hurriedly. "I can't let him overdo at the start."

Besides, we ain't got no stop-watch."

"I got a reg'lar watch," said Willie, "and I can catch you pretty close."

We'd admire to see you travel some, Mr. Speed."

But Glass vowed that he was in charge of his protegee's health, and would not permit it. Once outside, however, he exclaimed: "That's more of Fresno's work, Wally! I tell you, he's Jerry. He'll rib them pirates to clock you, and if they do—well, you'd better keep runnin', that's all."

"You can do me a favor," said Speed. "Buy that watch."

"There's other watches on the farm."

"Buy them all, and bring me the bill."

Before setting out on his daily grind, Speed announced to his trainer that he had decided to take him along for company, and when that corpulent gentleman rebelled on the ground that the day was too sultry, his employer would have none of it, so together they trotted away later in the morning, Speed in his silken suit, Glass running flat-footed and with great effort. But once safely hidden from view, they dropped into a walk, and selecting a favorable resting place, paused. Speed lighted a cigarette, Glass produced a deck of cards from his pocket, and they played seven-up. Having covered five miles in this exhausting fashion, they returned to the ranch in time for luncheon. Both ate heartily, for the exercise had agreed with them.

Low Spots.

It has been left to the United States geologists to localize the most depressed and depressing places on the earth. Every continent dips somewhere beneath the level of the sea. In the states itself the lowest depth is the aptly named Death Valley of California, about 300 feet below sea level. The old world, however, strikes a lower depth—1,200 feet—in the region of the Dead Sea. We now learn that the flooding of the Sahara, a dream of sanguine engineers, is impossible, for the general height is above sea level. Europe holds her head high, except on the Caspian shores, where she droops eighty-six feet. Australia, one is glad to hear, keeps her chin well above water.

WHAT TO PLANT AND WHEN

Advice by an Expert on Agricultural Matters—Chickens and Winter Laying—Raising Small Fruit—Garden Information.

By PROF. JOHN WILLARD BOLTE.

If you want eggs next winter, you must get some of this year's chickens hatched early. This is the most important consideration in getting winter eggs. Get the pullets hatched early, keep them growing as fast as is safe, get them into their winter quarters before snow flies next fall, and you will have no trouble getting the eggs from your flock while most of your neighbors are paying five cents apiece for theirs.

Of course there are a number of other things that are of prime importance in securing a satisfactory number of eggs during the off season, but the one great essential feature is early hatching. With some breeds of chickens the middle of February is none too early for the first hatches, and Plymouth Rocks hatched then will often begin to lay early in August, and will lay right through the winter without skipping. The smaller breeds can come along in March and early in April, but pullets hatched later than this will frequently fail to mature before cold weather sets in, and will often be delayed several months in starting to lay.

The pullet that lays her first few eggs before frost stands an excellent chance of keeping it up right through the winter. The pullet that does not lay before frost is frequently discouraged from exercising her acquired function until the advent of the natural laying season, and that is when we need her eggs least of all.

Old hens do not, as a rule, begin to lay until toward the end of the winter. They molt late in the fall and are not in full feather before cold weather comes on. Getting, as they necessarily do, a long rest, their eggs are usually larger, heavier shelled, more fertile and more hatchable than those of pullets that have been laying during the cold weather. For this reason it is much preferable to set eggs from mature hens for hatching purposes.

When you are saving eggs for hatching, be sure to gather them as soon as possible after they are laid, so as to avoid the possibility of the germ getting chilled. Eggs will freeze in a remarkably short time in the nest. Never attempt to set eggs that have been chilled.

Bring the eggs into a room with an even temperature above the freezing point, place them in a receptacle with the small end downward, and cover them up to prevent evaporation. Set them as soon as possible after laying, as it has been proven time and again that every day which passes lessens the chances of an egg to hatch a strong lively chick.

Unless you are going to set at least a hundred eggs this spring an incubator will not pay you, except in the fact that it will enable you to hatch your chickens whenever you desire to do so, instead of waiting for hens to feel inclined to set. For the average city poultry keeper an incubator is an extravagance. The small flock will not lay eggs fast enough to fill up the smallest incubator, and it will be better either to depend on hens for your hatching under such conditions, or to buy day-old chicks from some of the large hatcheries in your vicinity. The setting hen is a great nuisance in every way, and she is a persistent time killer, wasting not only her own time, but that of her owner, but man has never yet been able to develop a brooding device that would take her place in the small flock. For this reason, even if you do buy your little chicks, it will be well to have a hen about ready to come off when you get these chicks, slip them under her the night they arrive, and she will raise them as if they were her own.

Raising Small Fruit.

April is the very best month to set out a new strawberry bed, although some climates will permit of this being done earlier, and many successful beds are set out as late as June 15. Select well drained, warm land which has been used for a garden patch the previous year, if possible. Perfect drainage is highly important for strawberries. Plow or spade the ground from six to eight inches deep, turning under a couple of inches of well-rotted stable manure, and then cultivate the surface until it is very fine and smooth.

Buy good plants from your seedsmen, or, better still, from some man who has a good strawberry bed already started, and be careful to get good strong plants which are not run down. The variety which will do best on your soil depends so much upon local conditions that it is not possible to give advice in this department, but you will be safe in getting your plants from any reliable seed house or from some grower in your neighborhood who has a successful bed of his own.

The rows may be placed from two and a half to three feet apart where the bed is to be cultivated by hand, or four feet where a horse cultivator is to be used. Make a furrow just deep enough so that the plant roots are well spread and the crown of the plant, the point where the roots and the stems join, is just above the surface of the soil. Cover the roots deeply, and tread the soil firmly around the plants. Pick off the blossoms and dead leaves and keep the blossoms off the plants during the first season so as to conserve the energy of the plant and get it well established. Be careful not to allow the roots of the plants to become dry before they are placed in the ground.

Some of the plants are perfect and can fertilize the seed, while other plants in the same bed do not produce pollen, hence require pollen from other plants to produce fruit. For this reason it is a good plan to set one row of perfect plants for every two rows of the imperfect plants, although this rule admits of a great deal of variation.

As soon as the plants are set in the ground, water them well to bring the soil particles in close contact with the roots, and then either cultivate the ground between the rows or cover it with straw to prevent weed growth. The cultivation is much preferable during the first season. However, many successful growers find it advisable to cover the ground with straw until after the fruit is harvested from a bearing bed, as it not only prevents the growth of weeds by shading them, but it keeps the ripening fruit from being covered with mud when it rains during the picking season.

The plants should be set about 18 inches apart in the row, and the runners, or vine-like tendrils, must be kept back with a hoe the first season.

Preparing the Garden.

Any one who has a little patch of back yard can have a vegetable garden this year. By all means make the effort. It can not only furnish you with delicious, fresh vegetables, but you will get health and pleasure out of its care.

If your soil is sandy it will produce the early crops to great advantage, and you can get radishes, lettuce, and similar vegetables several weeks ahead of your neighbor with a clay garden, but the sandy soil does not stand the hot dry weather of the summer months as well as the clay or loam. For this reason it is usually desirable to cover a very sandy plot with several inches of barnyard manure and loam or black muck soil to give it some body and moisture retaining power. This top dressing should be evenly spread on just before plowing in the spring and it should be thoroughly turned under.

A loamy soil is ideal for general garden crops, the sandy loam being a little earlier, and the clay loam a little better in the hot weather. Loam soils do not need any other treatment than manure, every other year, unless the location is too wet. If this is the case, either surface or tile drainage will have to be installed in order to secure the best results.

Clay, either blue, yellow or red, is about the toughest proposition the gardener has to tackle. It possesses plant food in abundance and can be made to bear profitably, but it will need a lot of cultivation and treatment of various kinds before it can be handled with ease. In the first place it must be plowed or spaded deeply in order to break up the solid texture of the soil. Large quantities of well rotted manure containing considerable straw should be plowed under every year, and at the same time it will be well to plow under about two inches of sand, or sandy loam. After the last crop has been taken off any portion of the garden in the fall, sow the vacant ground to some fast growing cover crop and turn it under just before frost cuts it down. All of these factors will assist in loosening a heavy firm soil, allowing better penetration of air and water, and reducing the tendency of the soil to form large hard clots.

Don't strip the soil from a new garden. Turn it under by all means, as it will make the texture of the soil very much better. The greater the amount of decaying plant matter you can incorporate in the soil, the better will be your crop.

Plow or spade your garden as soon as the soil is dry enough to "scour" off the plowshare nicely. Plowing before this will leave the soil in a clotted or puddled condition and it will take a couple of years' hard work to correct this mistake, if the soil is heavy. With sandy or loamy soils the time of plowing is not so important as they are not liable to form clods, and they can be plowed when much drier than a clay. The owner of the clay patch or the muck garden, has to be extremely careful regarding this important feature, however.

After plowing, the treatment of all kinds of soil is practically the same. Cultivate, rake or harrow the soil until the surface, which is known as the seed bed, is as fine as you can possibly get it. The finer the better for all kinds of seed. This is because the particles of soil can get into closer physical touch with the little seeds and plant roots. They hold the soil water closer, and make their food contents much more available for the roots.

Home Town Helps

IMPROVE THE COUNTRY TOWN

Purely as a Business Proposition, Beautifying Any Village Will Be Found to Pay.

The cities, great and small, are doing their whole duty in providing parks, but the villages and small towns seem to think that parks are luxuries beyond them. We hear political economists bawling the fact that the cities are growing faster than the country, and they ask why it is. Parks, boulevards, libraries, added to the other attractions of the cities are sure to entice the country youth from the humdrum life in a frowsy hamlet. And who can blame them?

But if Mr. Carnegie, or Mr. Rockefeller, or other of our rich men, should assist and encourage our country towns to build parks, to plant trees and beautify their towns, thus making their homes pleasant, the glamour of the city would not be so striking, the building and endowing of great libraries is most commendable, but there are many things we need more. Those fine palaces filled with books are hand some monuments to the rich donor, but the same amount of money expended in playgrounds about the city schools and in parks in country villages would bring more health and happiness to all the people. Our country people need to be educated along this line. Make the country towns more beautiful, and the desire to leave them for the great cities will not be so great. In spring time the dwellers in the cities turn with longing to the country and the country town. They long for green fields and singing birds, and happy the suburban town whose people have made its streets shady, its appearance attractive, for to such will come people who add to the community's life and prosperity. From an economic view, village improvement pays. It fills up vacant houses, it increases the value of your property, it educates your boy and girl, and it will make this world a pleasanter place than you found it.

FIRST TEST OF BAROMETER

Before Putting Full Reliance on Instrument, Certain Precautions Are Imperative.

Don't expect a barometer to tell you the truth about the weather until you have tested it thoroughly. Two common causes for unreliability are air and water mixed with the mercury in the tube. These can be expelled by boiling the mercury. In order to test a barometer let it hang for a time in the proper position, then gently and with care incline it so that the mercury may strike against the glass tube. If there is no air within you will hear a sharp metallic click, but if the sound is dull and muffled it indicates the presence of both air and moisture. The presence of air alone is shown by minute bubbles. If at any time the mercury seems to adhere to the tube even in the slightest degree, and the convex surface assumes a more flattened form, it is safe to conclude that either air or moisture is present. In any of these cases the instrument should be put into expert hands for rectification.

There are several kinds of barometers. The ordinary "weather glass" in common use is more or less unreliable and is easily made more so by careless handling. In fact, any barometer must be treated with great respect in order to retain its usefulness.—Harper's Weekly.

FARM OF FORTY ACRES

Equipment, Management and Income of Small Place.

Convenient Scheme for Dividing Land into Five-Acre Tracts—One of These Utilized for Home-stand and Garden.

(By W. J. SPILLMAN, Chief of United States Bureau of Farm Management.)

Mr. H. H. Mowry of the office of farm management, has been making a special study of the equipment, management and income of a large number of small fruit and truck farms, many of them run by people who have recently come from the city.

This study has given us somewhat a new point of view. In general these small farmers are not successful. This fact has led us to study the question more closely, and as a result a scheme for the management of a forty-acre farm is outlined below, which seems to be practicable.

Figure 1 shows a convenient scheme for subdividing forty acres to fit it for the cropping system to be outlined below. It will be observed that the forty acres are divided into eight five-acre tracts. One of these is set aside for what may be called the "home-stand." These five acres are at the center on one side, and it is supposed that a public road passes this side of the tract.

Forty-acre farm subdivided into eight five-acre tracts. This shows a convenient method of subdivision which gives access to all the fields without wasting much land in roads. Length of lines given in rods.

Of these five acres half an acre is utilized for the house and yard and the barn and barn lot. This space is ample for what we have in view. One-half acre is devoted to garden, one and one-half acres to orchard and the remaining two acres for a paddock into which to turn the stock for exercise.

By judicious management these two acres can also be made to furnish some pasture and some soiling crops. The other seven five-acre tracts are to be devoted to a seven-year rotation. When this rotation is in full swing the crops on the farm for a given year will be as follows: Field A, potatoes; field B, three acres of cabbage and two acres of onions; field C, corn; field D, cowpeas; field E, corn; field F, clover; field G, clover.

The next year each of these crops would move to another field as follows: The potatoes would go to field G, which was in clover the year before. The cabbage and onions next year would go to field B. The corn on field C would go the next year to field B. Cowpeas in field D would go the next year to field C. The corn in field E would go to D, while E would be sown in clover and F remain in clover.

The next year each crop would move to another field in the same manner, so that each year potatoes are sown after second year clover, cabbage and onions are planted after potatoes, etc.

The potatoes, cabbage and onions on this farm would form the market crops. The two fields of corn, the field of cowpeas and the first year's seeding of clover would furnish twenty acres of forage for the live stock, while the second year clover would furnish pasture for the live stock during the summer.

In each of the two corn fields some winter grain, such as wheat or rye, could be sown early in August at the time when the corn is laid by, that is, when cultivation of the corn ceases. This wheat would furnish fall and winter pasture for the live stock. In the corn field which is to be followed by clover the wheat would be turned under very early in the spring in preparation for sowing the clover. In the corn field which is to be followed by cowpeas the wheat could remain until the second year clover field is ready to turn stock on, at which time it might be plowed up and sown to cowpeas. We thus have pasture during the whole year in sections where the seasons permit winter pasturing.

In states that are too far north for the cowpeas, soy beans may be substituted for them, and in regions too far north for soy beans, oats can be used on this field, the other crops in the rotation remaining the same. Commercial fertilizers would be required for the potatoes, cabbage and onions.

There is plenty of good literature published by the department of agriculture and by a good many of the state experiment stations relative to the cultivation and fertilization of potatoes, cabbage and onions, and the reader is referred to this literature for further information concerning the growing of these crops.

One fact to which I would call attention is that in the marketing of potatoes, cabbage and onions it is not necessary for the farmer to run to market every day for several weeks, as would be the case with most other kinds of truck crops, especially strawberries and tomatoes.

GARDEN CITY NEAR CHICAGO

Men Out of Employment Because of Age Will Run the Proposed Farms.

A garden city, similar to those of England and other European countries, will be built on a farm to be purchased by the Anti-Forty-five Limb league, organized for the purpose of providing a means of livelihood for men who have been thrown out of employment because of their ages.

The league will purchase a farm of 1,500 acres, near enough to Chicago that the garden products may find a ready market.

The farm is to be divided into five-acre tracts. One family will be established on each tract and given the means of operating the tract until able to pay for it.

The small farms will be close enough together to permit of the garden city plan. The residents will be under regular city government, the only restriction being that no saloons shall be allowed in the city.

Schools will be provided and churches will be built, streets laid out and all requisites of a modern city established.

The league has arranged for the sale of bonds to raise the money necessary for the enterprise. Five hundred dollars will establish a family on one of the farms and as soon as the man is able to pay the $500 and an extra $500 to bring another family the farm will be transferred to him.

Street Trees Valuable Assets.

No one has ever been overheard saying that any community, town, city, state or nation grew too many street trees. On the other hand those having the most have become famous for their civic pride and progressiveness. Again, countries or sections of countries have become barren, uninhabited wastes when denuded of all trees. Therefore, trees are in some cases a prime necessity and in all cases a valuable asset. So clearly is this recognized that there is much good-natured rivalry as to which city is best planted or has the most street trees. In fact street trees are the finest municipal asset a city may have, when well-grown and officially controlled.

Devotee of Dress.

Titta Ruffo, the new barytone, praised in Philadelphia the elegance of the American woman. "At one of your Rittenhouse Square houses," he said, "I complimented a husband on the elegance of his wife. He laughed and replied: 'Yes, my wife is indeed a devotee of fashion. I'm sure if she were to die she'd never consent to be an angel unless they'd let her wear a robe with a draped skirt.'"

A Gallant Answer.

"You seem to be an able-bodied man. You ought to be strong enough to work." "I know, mum. And you seem to be beautiful enough to go on the stage, but evidently you prefer the simple life."

After that speech he got a square meal and no reference to the wood pile.—Meddler.

Inhospitable Tundras.

Tundras are swampy tracts of land, covered partly with a thick layer of bog moss, partly with a dry, snow white covering of reindeer moss and varieties of lichens, bordering the Arctic ocean in Siberia and stretch west from the Ural mountains along the north of Europe. It is only the reindeer that renders this waste habitable for the wandering herds of Samoyeds who hunt the furred animals, as well as the swans and wild geese, which, in summer, flock there in great numbers. These polar steppes, however, can be trodden only in winter, when the whole region is one sheet of frozen soil and ice.

He Was Careful.

"I thought you told me Bunch could talk Russian." "So he can." "Then why wouldn't he talk to the Russian gentleman who came here yesterday?" "Because that ulcerated tooth has made his jaw so tender."

As a Bracer.

"How do you feel this morning?" "My tongue feels like an old rug." "Mine, too. Well, the best thing for that fuzzy feeling is a comphor cocktail with a mothball in it."

The Telltale Tick of Time

Everything in its season holds good throughout nature.

This is the season for Snipes and Killdeer and they have returned to us once more.

They have long legs for wading into the water in quest of food, and this is a wise provision.

But this Killdeer type of Horse and Mule so numerous in this section, cannot take their food from the water, and their owners are growing very tired supplying it from the crib.

The demand now is for horses and mules with heavy bodies and short, strong legs. The Percheron cross that we give you will cut the legs off and add two or three hundred pounds to the body, and give a kind work disposition. "Bit Chewing," "Tail Switching," and "Earth Pawing" is not in our kind. Come and see for yourself.

But everything in its season as we said in the outset—and according to that this is

Corn Planting Time

If you have trouble in getting a first-class stand of corn and making 60 bushels per acre, perhaps we can help you out. It's no trouble if you have reasonably good land, prepare it well and cultivate intelligently.

It's the good seed that we want to speak of here, for selling seed corn is a part of our business.

Only one variety on the farm, "Boone County White." And it's bound to be good, for every single ear is tested by "Holdens" test method that insures a strong germ and makes the plant in the hill equal strength so that they come up and go on to maturity together. Hence the increased yield per acre.

Planted right, replanting and thinning is almost dispensed with. We have two disinterested and competent men in charge of our seed corn department. They must protect our reputation, and hence are bound to serve you honestly.

$2.50 per bushel—no charge for bags. Figure it. One bushel of tested seed plants two acres more than untested seed. Saves cost of replanting and thinning, increases the yield from 5 to 15 bushels per acre over untested seed, and is satisfactory every time you look at the crop. We can fill hurry orders.
